

Charities Review Council's Year in Review

20 16

A Note From Executive Director Kris Kewitsch

Dear Council supporters,

2016 was a year of resilience for the Council. After receiving word in late 2015 that expected funding would not materialize, we re-worked our goals, strategies and annual plan. Although our core work remained the same, our approach changed. In hopes of "walking the walk and talking the talk," we shared our journey in a 3-part blog series*, which included the announcement of our updated staffing model. We creatively re-structured our organization to include a mix of permanent staff, contractors, and consultants. We continue to utilize this staffing model in 2017.

Despite these significant organizational shifts, we still served more than 565 nonprofits, provided more than 1,200 hours of personalized one-on-one technical assistance, and provided nearly 7,000 individuals with our Smart Giver Newsletter. We were also awarded an Ecosystem Grant from The Bush Foundation, for significant operating support over the next two years. It truly was a great year!

Looking ahead to 2017...

We're excited to invest deeply in technology, business modeling, and enhanced evaluation. We're also looking forward to our bi-annual event, FORUM 2017, an event honoring and celebrating the philanthropic sector. With support from our event planning partner, Pollen, and our event co-host, The Bush Foundation, we're creating a dynamic event and experience that pushes the conversation around trust, diversity, equity, and inclusion, forward. As a part of the FORUM experience, we'll also be launching our Diversity, Equity & Inclusion Toolkit, which will better support our nonprofit partners with reviewing, discussing and addressing equity gaps.

We have exciting and important work ahead, and your partnership makes it all possible.

We accomplish our work through our 3 main programs:
Donor Services, Nonprofit Services, and Donor-Nonprofit Relations.
